On 1st April 2018, the first independent air force in the world, the Royal Air Force, will have given the United Kingdom and the free world 100 years of Service. To mark this anniversary, the Worshipful Company of Coachmakers and Coach Harness Makers, The Honourable Company of Air Pilots and the Worshipful Company of Engineers will host a formal Banquet on Friday 20th April 2018 at the Guildhall in London. Assembled in the Guildhall Courtyard will be a display of aircraft and engines representing British aviation engineering achievements of the past 100 years.

During Friday morning (20th April) and the weekend (21st-22nd April) these facilities will be available to schools and cadets for STEM study (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) purposes.

On display will be a Sopwith Camel and an SE5a from WWI, a Spitfire and a Hurricane from WWII and a Eurofighter Typhoon from the present day, along with a range of aero engines.

The three City Livery Companies are active Liveries investing in young people and the charitable aim of the City Livery Banquet is to donate funds to support the education and training of RAF Air Cadets.
